00:34:40 jean ottosen: Hello from Nova Scotia, Canada. :)

00:34:52 Josephine Franklin: Hi from essex uk

00:38:56 Anne Marie Potmeer: it is very hard to understand JULES, the sound is not very clear.

00:40:21 Rebecca Rolnick: A little better

00:40:30 Melinda Nakagawa: Does she have earbuds

00:40:34 ilonavanweeren: is better

00:40:35 Heather KiNCH Studio: Yes

00:40:37 Yvonne Wittmann: Yes, better

00:40:40 Anne Marie Potmeer: better, perhaps a little slower speaking Jules?

00:40:46 Melinda Nakagawa: better

00:41:29 Anne Marie Potmeer: much better now

00:41:53 Corina: That was like a Beatrix Potter story!

00:42:07 karen colson: LOVE this approach to journaling

00:50:26 Mab: En Colombia también los zorros son tomados como villanos en la mayoría de las historias tradicionales.

00:51:49 Beverly Wong-Kleinjan: Busy / eager beaver :)

00:51:49 Corina: That's interesting, Mab: (google translate): In Colombia, foxes are also taken as villains in most traditional stories

00:51:57 Rebecca Rolnick: I love the Lion King, it was my favorite movie as a kid, but I agree about the hyenas

00:51:57 Cherie in Tucson: rattlesnakes

00:51:57 pat kuenning: "Peter & the Wolf"

00:51:58 gabriellewoodbury: wolves

00:51:58 Yvonne Wittmann: Wolves - bad. :(

00:52:00 Heather KiNCH Studio: coyotes are tricksters

00:52:01 Alex Boon: snakes

00:52:02 Sally: snails are a menace

00:52:08 gabriellewoodbury: Coopers hawks

00:52:09 dannie: Man eating sharks

00:52:09 karen colson: villan - possums - people hate them but they are amazing

00:52:10 Barbara Golden: Evil Wolves, gruesome

00:52:12 Margaret Hart: Crow. Scrub jay. Raucous.

00:52:13 Beverly Wong-Kleinjan: innocent dove

00:52:13 michelle: owls are wise

00:52:15 Rebecca Rolnick: Crows and ravens are bad omens

00:52:17 Susan Neilson: Cunning Coyote

00:52:18 Cherie in Tucson: hyenas

00:52:21 pat kuenning: Black Widows

00:52:23 raybonto: flies are irritating and mosquitoes

00:52:24 Anne Marie Potmeer: beavers industrious

00:52:24 Yvea Moore: Folks see vultures as bad omens.

00:52:27 Lisa Portwood: Magpie thieves

00:52:33 Heather KiNCH Studio: Doves are peaceful

00:52:34 Rebecca Rolnick: Beavers as pests, unfortunately

00:52:38 Corina: Swans as beautiful princesses - but they are actually destructive bullies in Canada.

00:52:38 Yvea Moore: A lot of stories with the mouse as the protagonist.

00:52:41 Alex Boon: bees heroes

00:52:46 Cherie in Tucson: hummingbirds-a joy

00:52:48 Anne Marie Potmeer: ticks

00:52:48 Karin: In buddhism - rabbits are heroes

00:53:13 Cherie in Tucson: heron's
00:53:17 gabriellewoodbury: Rattle snakes
00:53:30 Yvea Moore: Saying reptiles are cold blooded both as biological description and as personality one too :(
00:53:33 heidisargent: lemmings
00:53:33 Rebecca Rolnick: Sorry that would make Eagle a "hero" I forgot we're doing villains
00:54:58 Corina: Oohh, this is interesting!...I've seen an example of these regional names in Canada - on the east coast the fishermen have a whole different set of names for the seabirds. Terns are "steerin' gulls". Someone is from Nova Scotia here - maybe she knows more.
00:57:40 jean ottosen: Wish I could. Sorry. I just moved here from the Prairies!
00:58:40 annette van der Kaaij: the living rock

01:27:48 gabriellewoodbury: Yes!
01:28:02 Rebecca Rolnick: The main character is Soren, Eglantine is his little sister
01:28:05 Yvea Moore: There are a couple of books that center around Shakespeare and botany - they quote him and group his quotes by the kind of plants, so they can see how he characterizes the plants.
01:28:22 Corina: Those books sound fascinating Yvea.
01:28:33 leeannostia: do you have the names of the books?
01:29:07 Paddy O'Hare: I think there's one called Botanical Shakespeare?
01:29:32 Cherie in Tucson: Thank you so much. Need to leave...
01:29:45 Yvea Moore: That's one of them, Paddy! I can't remember the other... I will post both titles later on the INJW FB page!
01:29:50 karen colson: Signature of all things/ elizabeth gilbert
01:30:40 Yvonne Wittmann: Braiding Sweetgrass by Robin Wall Kimmerer —a must-read for all of this, story, names, etc.
01:30:47 Sherry Anderegg: Shakespeare's Flowers

01:32:35 Cindy HW: Balcones Canyonlands National Wildlife Refuge got its name from the geographic features in the hills that reminded Spanish Conquistadors of balconies.

01:32:41 INJW - Brian Higginbotham: Common Ground
<https://www.commonground.org.uk/local-distinctiveness/>

01:34:00 Mary Larson: @Karen - yes, fantastic book; @Yvonne - also a fantastic book

01:34:24 Rebecca Rolnick: I second "Braiding Sweetgrass" -- one of my all time favorite books

01:37:01 karen colson: sooo fascinating, Jules

01:37:33 Anne Marie Potmeer: how much you know, I love hearing all this

01:38:06 Michelle Fossey: Thanks so much Jules, we've got to go now and have had the camera off as we've been having dinner at the same time :) But hope to speak very soon, thanks again :) Nish and Benji xx

01:38:16 Suzanne Marshall: You have researched your place which is called Environmental History--Change over time in an environment/nature. That was my career,

01:38:45 Corina: Oh, I haven't heard of the field of Environmental History - Jules has brought it alive here! What an interesting career!

01:39:50 Anne Marie Potmeer: here along river Maas we have a lot of prehistoric bones and tusks and real roman ship in the bottom of the river, pots and plates.. so interesting

01:39:55 Trudy Harrold: I would love to know more about your career, Suzanne

01:40:00 Beverly Wong-Kleinjan: So you are so inspiring, Jules. Thank you so much!

01:41:03 Gisela Foster: Thank you very much for this delightful hour. I have a former landfill behind my house and I am documenting (drawing) all the things that survive on my hill. I have named it Zampano Hill.

01:41:12 heidisargent: <3

01:41:42 Chris.Gregore: Oh my goodness, I love your map Jules. =)

01:41:58 leannostia: it's so great! love the map!

01:42:02 karen colson: love this !!

01:42:18 leannostia: the footprints are so fun

01:42:24 Heather KiNCH Studio: I love this map Jules!

01:42:42 Melinda Nakagawa: It give such freedom! It removes the pressure to make achieve "perfection" and technical accuracy

01:42:51 Rebecca Rolnick: The footprints remind me of the Maurader's Map "Mischief managed"

01:42:53 pat kuenning: love the stamp idea

01:42:58 Liisa: Love this map so much! I have been pondering to make one of my area but so far haven't been sure how to best do it. So this is inspiring!

01:43:10 Cindy HW: ❤️❤️ the map. Reminds me of names we used to give things in the pasture as children.

01:43:25 Mary Larson: Really charming; I can imagine you have a story to tell for each little spot on the map

01:43:29 Rebecca Rolnick: It reminds me of the names Anne gives to everything in Anne of Green Gables

01:43:37 Yvea Moore: This is wonderful <3
